DETAILED ACTION

This action is in response to the application filed on 7 November 2001 in which claims 1-45 are pending.

Claim Objections

1. Claim 28 is objected to because of the following informalities: the words "base plate" was not mentioned previously. Appropriate correction is required.
2. Claim 30 is objected to because of the following informalities: the words "threaded connection" was not mentioned in a preceding claim within the dependency chain; however, it was mentioned in claim 29. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 1-4, 9, 14-15, 18, and 23-27 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Yanagishima (U.S. Patent No. 4,514,599).

Regarding claims 1-4, 9, 14-15, 18, and 23-27, Yanagishima teaches an inertial exciter for an acoustic radiator comprising a massive member (553-555); a coupler <sup>546</sup>~~(547)~~ for attachment to an acoustic radiator (540); a motor (548, 553-556); and a suspension (550), wherein the suspension acts in a plane generally passing through the center of mass of the massive member, thereby reducing any moment acting on the suspension.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 31-45 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Fresard (U.S. Patent No. 4,4514,599).

Regarding claims 31-33, and 37-41, Fresard teaches an exciter attached to a base plate (6) in a repeatedly engageable manner (fig. 5). Fresard does not teach the base plate for attachment to an acoustic radiator in a non-repeatedly engageable manner. However, the examiner takes official notice that it is known to non-repeatedly engage a base plate to a radiation by using materials, such as adhesive glue, bonding cements, etc., for securely applying the exciter to a specific location. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to include a material such as adhesion in the invention of Fresard for firmly securing the exciter at a specific optimal location.

Regarding claims 34 and 43, Fresard teaches the releasable connection is a threaded connection (27).

Regarding claims 35-36, 42, and 44-45, Fresard teaches a locking device (inherently provided reverse threading of the elastomer, 10) for locking the threaded connection.

5. Claims 5-8 and 16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yanagishima (U.S. Patent No. 4,514,599).

Regarding claims 5-8 and 16, Yanagishima does not teach the specifics of the suspension as being a spider formed from a corrugated foil of metal, polymer, or strengthened cloth.

However, the examiner takes official notice that it is known in the art to make the suspension of materials such as thin metal plates, rubber or polymer, strengthened cloth, and cantilever type for achieving the desired elasticity and support. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to make the suspension of any material such as metal, polymer or strengthened cloth for achieving the desired elasticity and strength.

6. Claim 13 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yanagishima (U.S. Patent No. 4,514,599) in view of Van Urk (U.S. Patent No. 2,698,917).

Regarding claim 13, Yanagishima teaches the magnet assembly comprising a magnet sandwiched between a magnet cup and a pole piece, the cup defining a magnet gap, which is filled with retentive fluid of suitable viscosity to damp motion of the voice coil. Van Urk teaches the desirability of a magnet assembly (fig. 2) comprising a magnet (1) sandwiched between a magnet cup (4) and a pole piece (5), the cup defining a magnet gap (8) for minimizing stray fields. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use the cup-like magnetic assembly in the invention of Yanagishima, as taught by Van Urk, for minimizing stray fields. Furthermore, the combination of Yanagishima and Van Urk does not teach filling the magnetic gap with retentive fluid. However, the examiner takes official notice that it is known in the art to fill the magnetic gap with retentive fluid of suitable viscosity to damp motion of the voice coil and removing heat. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to include retentive fluid in the magnet gap of the combination of Yanagishima and Van Urk for the reasons stated above.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 10-12, 17, 19-22, 28-30, are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
